Your immediate environment is your own home and yard. Your safety, your property value, and your personal pride are all involved.

DOES YOUR FIGURE NEED SLIMMING AND TRIMMING?

The Glenview Health Department is sponsoring a new series of its very successful Slim and Trim sessions, which have now grown too large for the Library location and have been moved to the Hoffman School, 2000 Harrison.

The new series, again on Wednesday nights, begins April 25 for 8 weeks (through June 13), 7:15 to 9 PM.

Why not join the figuratively beautiful people? For further information call the Glenview Health Educator, Jean Voght, at 724-1700.

GLENVIEW'S DENTAL PROGRAM SUCCEEDS

During the recent oral hygiene program in District 34 and at Our Lady of Perpetual Help School (March 7 and 14), 90 classrooms in 8 schools were visited by 24 volunteer Registered Nurses and Dentists, who gave 2,289 children instruction in dental health; 1,814 children used the self-applied fluoride paste.

The program was sponsored by the Glenview Health Department, the Illinois Department of Public Health, and School District 34. Glenview Health Educator Jean Voght coordinated the program.

GLENVIEW COOPERATES WITH SAVE-A-PET

Stray animals picked up in Glenview are now held for five days for possible identification, and are then taken to Save-a-Pet, Inc., in Highland Park, where they receive expert care before being put up for adoption.

Females are spayed, and all necessary shots are given to animals of both sexes. No animal in Save-a-Pet's care has yet been put to death.

Glenview is one of fourteen north shore communities now cooperating with the Save-a-Pet program. The others are Northbrook, Northfield, Skokie, Mt. Prospect, Deerfield, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Glencoe, Highland Park, Highwood, Lake Bluff, and Lake Forest.

Dennis Goessele

Dennis Goessele, Glenview's Animal Control Officer, believes Save-a-Pet is an excellent program, and he urges Glenview residents to find out more about it and help in any way possible. Of course you are helping indirectly by calling the Glenview Police (724-2131) whenever you find a stray animal in Glenview.

Save-a-Pet's address is Box 193, Highland Park 60035, and the phone number is 432-3108. The organization needs money, workers, and loving homes for animals. Won't you help?

LOCUSTS DUE BACK IN JUNE

You may have been wondering about the so-called 17-year locusts, and when they are coming again. Actually, the periodical cicada (to call it by its rightful name) emerges someplace in the U.S. every year.

But this June, according to University of Illinois scientists, a heavy emergence of brood number 13 of the "17-year locust" is due to appear in this area. The last emergence was in 1956, and you may remember the devastation that resulted. In some areas of Chicagoland, counts ranged as high as one and a half million cicadas per acre. Tree damage was visible for many years thereafter, and many trees did not survive.

There are several sprays available to control the voracious pests. Call your tree or garden service for an appointment (the professionals know just when to come around and spray your property), or if you plan to do the job yourself, see your garden supply dealer for the necessary equipment and information.

You won't be able to prevent insects from flying into your yard, but you can effectively control those that emerge there, and the experts say most damage is done by the insects on their home ground.

GLENVIEW TRUSTEES have amended the traffic code applying to the 30-space municipal parking lot at 1227-29 Waukegan Road (at MacLean Court) to make the south half free for two-hour parking, and the north half free for all-day parking.

WHEN YOU CALL THE FIRE DEPARTMENT merely for information, please use their non-emergency telephone number: 724-2141.

DUTCH ELM DISEASE IS STILL WITH US. If your elms are not leafing out this spring, have them checked immediately by your tree service. Dead elms are a threat to all the healthy ones in the area. If your elms are still alive, by all means spray them this spring. The Public Works Department is spraying all parkway elms, as it does every year.
